

A Note Regarding the Rising Cost of Fuel and Shipment Charges

Due to the increasing market supply demands and high freight rates, all Flat Rate charges will now be an estimate and subject to change based on the ever-changing costs of fuel and transportation. For example, fuel surcharges imposed by freight carriers may be added to the flat rate base charge.

You will be notified of any additional freight charge prior to shipping your order, and you will have the option to either approve or decline the order request after notification of any increase.

Among other causes, we are no longer an energy exporting nation and the reality of increasing fuel rates is something we are all looking to manage. Thus far, we have absorbed the cost of many price increases to provide the best service at a competitive price and will continue to avoid additional charges, but some realities and costs are out of our control.

We truly appreciate you and thank you for your understanding.
